

Jen Fernandez is a member of the Global Arbitration, Trade and Advocacy group at Sidley Austin. She focuses her practice on counseling clients in a wide range of industries with compliance advice on a variety of international trade laws and regulations, including the Export Administration Regulations, International Traffic in Arms Regulations, regulations administered by the Office of Foreign Assets Control, and the anti-boycott requirements administered by the U.S. Department of Commerce. She advises clients on export controls and sanctions risk assessments, including in connection with investments, offerings and acquisitions. She also conducts internal investigations, handles voluntary self-disclosures, and designs and implements trade controls compliance programs. Prior to joining Sidley, Jen was an associate at a leading international law firm, where she practiced in the International Trade and National Security group. Jen received her J.D. from The George Washington University School of Law.